

Course Description

AMH2070 | Florida History | 3.00 credits

Florida from the Spanish period to the present with emphasis on the modern development of natural resources, urbanization, industry, culture, and tourism.

Course Competencies

Competency 1: The student will understand the transformation of Florida from the Spanish period to the present by exploring the modern development of natural resources, urbanization, industry, culture, and tourism by:

1. Analyzing the modern development of natural resources, urbanization, industry, culture, and tourism in Florida from the Spanish period to the present, identifying the key factors that have shaped the state's growth and development
2. Evaluating the impact of modern development on natural resources, urbanization, industry, culture, and tourism in Florida, discerning their significance in the state's economic, social, and cultural landscape
3. Comparing the historical and contemporary implications of the modern development of natural resources, urbanization, industry, culture, and tourism in Florida, correlating them to the state's evolving identity and economic prosperity

Competency 2: The student will gain insight into the historical and contemporary significance of Florida's development by examining the modern utilization of natural resources, urbanization, industry, culture, and tourism by:

1. Analyzing the historical and contemporary significance of Florida's development by examining the modern utilization of natural resources, urbanization, industry, culture, and tourism, identifying key factors contributing to the state's economic and cultural evolution
2. Evaluating the impact of the modern utilization of natural resources, urbanization, industry, culture, and tourism on Florida's historical and contemporary significance, discerning their role in shaping the state's economic, social, and cultural landscape
3. Interpreting Florida's development's historical and contemporary significance by examining the modern utilization of natural resources, urbanization, industry, culture, and tourism, thereby gaining a nuanced understanding of the state's economic and cultural heritage

Competency 3: The student will analyze the evolving identity of Florida by considering the impact of modern development on natural resources, urbanization, industry, culture, and tourism from the Spanish period to the present by:

1. Comparing the impact of modern development on natural resources, urbanization, industry, culture, and tourism in Florida from the Spanish period to the present, identifying key similarities and differences in the state's evolving identity
2. Assessing the influence of modern development on natural resources, urbanization, industry, culture, and tourism in Florida, evaluating their role in shaping the state's evolving identity and economic landscape
3. Interpreting the impact of modern development on natural resources, urbanization, industry, culture, and tourism in Florida, thereby gaining a nuanced understanding of the state's evolving identity and cultural heritage

Learning Outcomes:

- Demonstrate knowledge of ethical thinking and its application to issues in society
- Describe how natural systems function and recognize the impact of humans on the environment